VALEDICTORIAN

Maria B. Almeida

Congratulations class of 2024!!

As we prepare to take our next steps into the unknown, it's a saddening moment to reflect on the extraordinary journey we've crossed together, starting from that uncertain freshman year, which for many of us, was experienced virtually. From our initial hesitant steps into the digital classroom to the confident strides we now take, we've overcome complicated challenges, formed enduring connections, and created many memories along the way. Again congratulations to the determined and exceptional Class of 2024! This is not the end of our story; rather, it marks the beginning of thrilling adventures awaiting us in the forthcoming chapters.

Sincerely.
Maria B. Almeida

SALUTATORIAN

Julissa S. Ayoso

Dear fellow graduates,

As we stand on the brink of our future, I'm honored to address you as the salutatorian of our class. Together, we've navigated challenges and celebrated triumphs, shaping our journey thus far. Let's embrace the memories we've created and the lessons we've learned as we embark on new beginnings. Congratulations to us all, and may our paths be filled with success and fulfillment.

Sincerely,
Julissa Ayoso

How did you balance or manage time between sports and school?
"So, it can be very difficult because I either have practice or a game after school every day which is obviously exhausting and I often get home late so to compensate, I try to get my work done at school or any free time I have throughout the day and if I have a project, I try to finish it as soon as possible so I'm not stressing about it later on."

How did the sport shape you as a person? Did the sport shape you for your future? "I think it added a lot more charisma to my personality. It taught me how to be nice to people , more accepting, more patient, and how to deal with multiple challenges. It showed me how solutions to problems are not always gonna be a straight answer. It made me more of an outgoing and confident person. It motivated me to keep going and to always put my best foot forward whether it be academics or just keeping my life together. I think that is a good trait to have in college. 'Being able to deal with procrastination.'

Do you think that being part of a team creates long lasting friendships? Why or how?

"I do think so. I think that everyone starts off kind of on their own and as the year goes on, and as the sport is played, people find more ways to connect with each other. They just find a common ground and it starts more friendships off because you get more interactions with people and you get to talk about things that you're interested in. I think that it creates long lasting friendships because bonds over sports are special and, at least for me, it lasts longer than many expect."

TOP SECRET

Would you ever consider coaching and why?

"I would consider coaching because, well, I currently coach for a non-profit my coach runs called Hockey New Jersey. In this profit, he teaches kids to skate from a young age with all the equipment for free and high school kids like myself help out over there. So I do coach and it's really fun and we get to help the kids. We were in that position before so doing it for them is really nice and I would consider doing it more because coaching hockey is basically having fun with the kids on the ice."

What life-lesson(s) did you learn playing being a part of this sport?
"A life lesson I learned being part of boys baseball is that I really have to work for my spot and that things don't come to you easily. Being part of a team that is a little bit more advanced means that I have to work hard for my spot because my strength compared to the boys might not be as equal so if I just do my best and work hard, the coaches will recognize that and give me the spot that I can be of use in. I think that it's all really about hard work and this sport really taught me more about hard work than anything else."

Lenny Chill

Leonard (Lenny) Chill grew up in Newark, graduated from Weequahic, and began his teaching career in New York City. However, he always felt a deep connection to East Side. In 1962, he joined East Side as a history teacher and embarked on a remarkable 36-year journey that would see him become one of its most beloved teachers, an institution, and a legend.

In his second year at East Side, Lenny became the junior class advisor, and the following year he began a record-setting run as senior class advisor, which he held 13 times (in 1964, 1966, 1968, 1970, 1972, 1975, 1981, 1983, 1985, 1987, 1989, 1991, and 1993). Over 6,000 students graduated from East Side with Lenny Chill as their senior class advisor. Each one of them remembers him with affection and fond memories.

Lenny was also a much-loved social studies teacher. When he added Psychology as a history elective, his classes were always over-enrolled. For Lenny, teaching was not just a job, but a passion. East Side was not just a workplace, but a second home. The students and staff were as much a part of his family as his wife Barbara and his two daughters.

Manuel Yglesias

Manny Yglesias was born in Newark, NJ on September 25th, 1947. His parents, Manuel and Herminia Yglesias had immigrated from Spain and settled in Newark's Ironbound where they started a grocery store business.

Manny was a relaxed and happy baby and continued to be so as a young boy. In the words of Herminia, his mom, Manny was "un santo", a saint. He attended Lafayette Street School, and remembered his primary school years as the time when learning came with some difficulty. He believed, in retrospect, that he may have been suffering from an undiagnosed learning disability. There was an event at the Lafayette Street School that had a lasting effect and charted the course of his life: A teacher asked him what he was planning to do after graduating from high school and Manny stated that his plan was to attend college. The teacher advised Manny that he should revise his plan and set his sights on attending a trade school. It was then and there, as Manny recounted it, that his determination to pursue higher education was born.

The memories of his time at East Side High School were much happier. Learning became easier and enjoyable. After East Side, he enrolled in Newark College of Engineering, today's NJIT, where he received a bachelor's degree in civil engineering followed by a master's degree in engineering at Northwestern University in Chicago. He worked for a few years in the field of engineering, which included time working in Nicaragua during the aftermath of the 1972 earthquake. But soon Manny realized that it was business and finance that really fascinated him, so to further his knowledge he enrolled in NYU where he received an MBA. Ultimately, he found happiness and fulfillment running the business that his mother had started and investing in real estate. The pursuit of knowledge was Manny's lifelong passion. He never tired of learning.

Manny's professional and Business accomplishments are just a footnote to the great human being he was. He was a great husband to Elvira, his wife of 42 years, and a great father to Brian and Chris. He was the center of his extended family. A true and loyal friend, with many of his friendships going back to his years at East Side and Newark College of Engineering. Manny gave freely of himself and was always ready to help those that crossed his path and needed help.

Manny was a proud American and equally proud of his Spaniard ancestry and culture. The New York Giants were his team, and the football season was the yearly source of much joy and much disappointment. He loved Newark, and the Newark Ironbound was Home.
